New location for May 14 Plant Sale

From David Mitchell, plant sale coordinator:

The annual Spring Garden Fair and Plant Sale will take place from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. May 14 at the New York State Armory, 1765 Hanshaw Road, Ithaca (off Route 13 east of the airport). Setup is Friday, May 13 from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. We will have an indoor location with other garden groups, plus there will be more than 40 vendors outside.

Plants should be potted up in soil-less mix at least two weeks before the sale. This will ensure our display will be full of healthy looking plants. Those who have plants to donate but can't make the setup or morning of sale, feel free to drop plants in my driveway at 402 Esty Street (driveway is on Washington Street side). Please remember to have all plants labelled. Let me know if you need help digging special plants.

Keep in mind that people flock to our table for the unique plants we have that can't be found from other vendors. If you have something different or special that needs dividing, you can be sure that your donation will make some gardener's day and find a new home where it will be appreciated.

Volunteering for the sale is casual. We do not have a sign up sheet for time slots. Members are free to come and go as they please. The sale is fun, friendly, and a great learning experience. Contact me if you have questions: (607) 342-3660 or dwm23@cornell.edu.

May 21 Open garden at Bill and Jane Plummer's

Bill and Jane Plummer will host an Open Garden from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on May 21. Their garden is located at 10 Fox Lane East, Gang Mills, N.Y. (near Painted Post).

Their award-winning native plant garden is under mature oaks, pines and hickories and features trillium, bloodroot, Virginia bluebells and some 60 other wildflowers often planted in masses. More than two dozen native ferns line the paths and are used as foundation plantings and throughout the woods. High-limbed trees are underplanted with flowering trees and shrubs, including native azaleas.

In addition to the native plants, the garden contains numerous other shade-loving plants, e.g. Asian counterparts as well as a number of Asian maples, a small collection of dwarf conifers, rock garden plants and a large collection of rhododendrons.

This garden has received awards from the Federated Garden Club and the Finger Lakes Native Plant Society and has hosted a number of tours as well as visits from scores of individuals. Bill is generous in donating plants from his garden for plant sales.

Billie Jean Isbell's garden in Brooktondale is one of three Tompkins County Gardens featured in the Garden Conservancy's Open Days June 11.

Also featured that day are Woodland Wonders and Medicine Tree Farm, both in Newfield.

Writes Billie Jean in the Garden Conservancy's description: “My garden features a series of rooms separated by trees and shrubs that were planted in 1984. I started with two spring rock gardens next to the house. Then, I experimented with a sand bed and a “hot garden” inspired by Elizabeth Sheldon’s garden in Lansing. The pond and waterfall replaced the old perennial garden in 2005 and I added a crevice garden next to the waterfall in 2006. In 2010, I completed three more rooms: another crevice garden called Apu Isbell, an outdoor study under the canopy of a gigantic weeping beech, and an Earth Mother altar.”

Still room for White Pine Camp work weekend

From Carol Eichler

We can still accommodate a few more people for the White Pine Camp work weekend June 18 to 20. (See March newsletter for details.) Plant donations of all kinds are also welcome. We'll accept anything that is of small to moderate size, sun or shade as the garden is vast and offers various conditions to allow for a wide range of plants. We are not so concerned with zone hardiness since the deep and reliable snow cover forms good protection for plants that we would not expect to survive. In that regard, this garden has become a testing ground. Contact Carol Eichler if you're interested in going or have plants to donate. ceichler@twcny.rr.com

July 10 Member Garden Tour

Plans are set for our July 10 garden tour with a trio of spectacular Syracuse-area gardens. Here's the schedule:

10 a.m.: Michael Brennan’s garden, 1697 Berwyn Road, Pompey, N.Y.

Pagoda Hill is named for the Cornus alternifolia (pagoda dogwood) that proliferate on the eighteen-acre hilltop. Mown paths allow access through the varied terrain of meadow, woodland, hillside, and pond. Close to the house is a sixty-foot locust pergola for growing roses and clematis, bordered by peonies and iris. The brick-lined gravel path continues into a formal perennial garden backed by a thirty-foot hot-colored border. The path ends with a locust arbor surrounded by twenty-seven raised beds for vegetables and cut flowers. Connected to the house is a shad shrub border featuring chartreuse foliage and blue and white flowers.

There is a convenience store/gas station between the first and second stops on NY 11 in Lafayette (NORTH of US 20).

12 noon: John Gilrein's garden, 4003 Bussey Road, South Onondaga, N.Y.

John has informal gardens with a rock garden, a crevice garden, a woodland garden adjacent to a bog garden, and borders with shrubs and perennials.

1:30 p.m. Harold Peachey's garden, 3837 Bussey Road, South Onondaga, N.Y.

Harold has newly developing gardens including prairie, shade gardens, common borders, a rock garden, The Bear's Grave (too big for a dog's grave), a vegetable garden and grasses. Liberal use of annuals mixed with an interesting starter collection of perennials from around the world.

Late lunch on the deck at Harold's after the garden tour. Dish to pass or bring your own lunch.

Please be considerate of the garden tour hosts and gentle on the gardens in the garden tour. The hosts will likely participate in the garden tour, so please be mindful of your arrival time. You may tour all of the gardens, or just one or two of them.

With the chair: In memory of our members who have passed away

From Billie Jean Isbell, chair

While it was still cold and winter seemed that it would never end, I marveled as the early bloomers in my garden stubbornly forced their way through the cold ground to announce the coming of spring: Galanthus, helebore, Saxafragia, primroses and dwarf daffodils rewarded me with early color.

I acquired all of these plants and bulbs through our chapter's activities. As our gardens burst into bloom let's remember chapter members who have passed away leaving behind their memories in the plants they have donated to our plant sales and exchanges as well as energy and extensive knowledge they contributed to our chapter.

Three members who have passed away were instrumental in the establishment of the Adirondack Chapter in the late 1970's: Irma and Norbert Markert and Nina Lambert. They were also among the organizers of the 1989 Garden Symposium called "On the Rocks" sponsored by our chapter at Cornell Plantations. They remained active in our chapter until their deaths in 2009-10.

The Markerts received the chapters' Service award in 1994 for promoting rock gardening and sharing their extensive knowledge as well as their plants for beginners. Nina Lambert's rock garden was an inspiration to rock gardeners in our region and far beyond. One of our members, Rosemarie Parker, recalls that she still has many plants that Nina gave her as 'starter plants.' And she adds that she cannot see Allium carinatum spp. Pulchellum in her garden without thinking of Nina. Nina was also our chapter's ambassador. She reached out to national and international speakers who recall fondly her hospitality during their visits.

We would also like to remember two members of our chapter from Greene who also passed away during the last year: Shirley Halwig and Alice Davis. Shirley continued gardening as long as she could. I remember that she used her small transplanting spade as a cane as she showed our chapter her lovely garden a few years ago. Alice Davis was a faithful attendee of our meetings until her failing health prevented her from traveling from Greene. I especially appreciated Alice's energy and her sense of humor. Both were generous providers of plant material to our chapter.

As we look at our gardens, let's remember these members and their contributions to our gardens. The chapter is donating $500 dollars in their memory.

New books in lending library

From Carol Eichler

We extend our thanks to Tibby McLafferty for donating the following reference books (they originally came from Carol Sienko, who had a wonderful rock garden on Ellis Hollow Creek Rd. outside Ithaca) to our lending library:

All About Rock Garden Plants by Walter Kolaga. Nice older gardening book with good suggestions for rock placement and layout on various types of slopes, the incorporation of naturalistic water features, and a discussion of different kinds of gardens, such as a bog or cactus garden.

Rock Gardens: How to Plan and Plant Them by A. Edwards. Edwards was Assistant curator of the Royal Botanic Garden at Kew and it includes color plates.

The Present Day Rock Garden by Sampson Clay. Published in 1954.

The English Rock Garden, Vol. 1 and Vol. 2 by Reginald Farrer. Farrer (1880 – 1920) was a traveler and plant collector especially throughout Asia, publishing a number of books. He brought many plants back to England to be planted near his home village of Clapham, North Yorkshire. In the words of Farrer's biographer, Nicola Shulman, "He brought rock-gardening into the hearts of the British people." His lasting legacy is a spectacular display of plants from the Himalayas, which are today growing in a wild display around Ingleborough. While other plantings of his survive in Clapham village. For the armchair traveler these books are another way in which Farrer has shared his discoveries.
